Matt Cohn Honored with Player of the Week Accolades

Cohn's hat trick against the University of Iowa and diverse playing ability leads to award

Dec. 11, 2010 – Ames, Iowa - Cyclone Hockey is happy to honor Matt Cohn with Player of the Week accolades. In the first game against the University of Iowa, Cohn scored a hat trick helping the team to a 10-1 victory.

Matt is an excellent all-around player, logging time at even strength, power play and penalty kill. With six total points for Iowa State, including two power play goals, one short-handed goal and a game winning goal, Matt's ability to play in any situation is revealed through his stats. Not only is Cohn an excellent forward, but he also spent a game playing defense for the Cyclones, showing the diversity of his skills.

This is Cohn's first season with the Cyclones. Before playing for Iowa State, Matt played for the Chicago Force of the CSHL. At Iowa State, Matt has been reunited with a former line mate from the Force and meshes well with the team. Cohn hails from Hampshire, Ill. and is a junior majoring in Management at Iowa State.

Head Coach Dr. Al Murdoch considers "Matt a very coachable player and well respected by his team mates". He also describes Matt as an "outstanding student in the classroom as well as a student of the game on the ice".
